

1000 HOMES

1000 Homes Kickoff: Can the public sector help end homelessness in Los Angeles County?

Can the development and land use community be a meaningful part of the solution? Is homelessness solvable? What costs do we bear as a city and region if we allow this issue to persist?

For the past year, the ULI-LA 1000 Homes Committee has been developing a slate of programs focused on homelessness in Los Angeles County. Please join us on January 19th as we kick off this initiative for 2010. Learn about our slate of planned programs for this year, gain insights on the issue of homelessness, understand why the issue is relevant to ULI's mission, and learn about meaningful opportunities to become more engaged.

The evening will consist of a series of speakers from the public sector, non-profit community, and the real estate industry who will share their insights on the issue of homelessness in Los Angeles, its numerous costs for our community, their personal connection to the issue, and the efforts they are making to help end this crises.
